Lawyer Sidney Powell is seen via video during a hearing of the House committee investigating Jan. 6.

A wide-ranging subpoena sent to Trump campaign officials last month shows new areas of investigative interest as part of the Justice Department's extensive Jan. 6 criminal probe, according to a copy reviewed by The Washington Post, and lawyers say a grand jury focused on the day's events and related fundraising has increased its activities in recent months.

The subpoena was received in early December, according to a former Trump campaign official

They themselves are paying for legal representation — and if so, to provide a copy of the retention agreement for that legal work. At least one other former campaign official also received the subpoena, according to that person's lawyer, who also spoke on the condition of anonymity to avoid drawing attention to his client.

The subpoena seeks any communications or information about Dominion and Smartmatic, two voting technology companies that were subjected to a barrage of false conspiracy theories floated by advisers to President Donald Trump. That request seems designed to gather what campaign officials

The screenshot shows the registration process for a PressReader account. At the top right, there is a red box around the '註冊' (Register) button. The page includes fields for '電子郵件' (Email address) and '密碼' (Password), and a 'Name' field split into '名' (First name) and '姓' (Last name). Below these, there are two checkboxes for 'Allow email communications': one for '產品更新' (Product updates) and another for '服務通知' (Service notifications). A note states: 'By registering for a PressReader account, you agree to the Terms of Use and the Privacy Policy'. A large green 'Create my account' button is centered below the checkboxes. To the left, a news preview for 'Subpoena reveals a wi...' is visible, showing a photo of Sidney Powell at a hearing. To the right, a column of text discusses legal subpoenas and campaign officials.

The screenshot shows the PressReader homepage. At the top right, there is a red box around the user icon. The main area displays a grid of publication covers. One cover is highlighted with a red box and labeled '我的出版物' (My Publications). Other visible publications include 'Global Asia', 'The Washington Post', 'ASIAN Geographic', 'GlobalAsia', '中国经济时报', 'CHINESE SOCIAL SCIENCES TODAY', and '天下雜誌'. A '精選' (Selected) section shows more publications like 'National Geographic' and 'CNN'. A '查看全部 >' button is located in the bottom right corner of the grid.
